

Waivers, Benefits, & My Child

Being the parent of a child with a disability is extremely difficult and making the right decisions for your son or daughter's future can be tough as well. There are no shortage of questions when it comes to finding the proper resources, but unfortunately answers are often in short supply. How do you, as parents, navigate the often confusing maze of benefits that may be available to help? How do you understand eligibility requirements that feel as though they are constantly changing? How do you prepare?

Please join us for a presentation that we hope will provide some guidance and understanding.
